II.1.4) Short description

Schiphol Nederland B.V. ("SNBV") is operating the Amsterdam Airport Schiphol ("AAS") in The Netherlands.

One of SNBV's tasks is to ensure that the processes using the ether on the premises of AAS (the "Ether") can be executed without disruption. This is executed by "Ether Control Schiphol" ("ECS") within SNBV. All users of this Ether must comply with the rules set by ECS. When a company wants to make use of this Ether it must apply with ECS for a license to be issued by ECS.

The role of ECS is growing in importance due to the growing use of mobile communication and the ambition of AAS to be world's number one digital airport.

Due to the required specific knowledge, IT tools and measurement equipment to fill up ECS on the required level for the (future) airport, SNBV has investigated via a market review the possibility to outsource activities of ECS to a market party.

The services SNBV wants to obtain and the demands to a possible supplier are described in attached document.
