II.1.4) Short description

ProRail intends to start a tender for a worksite safety system. The objective is to decommission and recommission the tracks more quickly than in the current situation, whereby the employee who is responsible for taking safety measures can stay outside the risk area until the track is decommissioned. ProRail assumes a system with remote control functionality and a system that uses train detection as means of intervention in the signaling system. ProRail wishes to use the system during frequently used maintenance schedules and in project work that repeatedly requires the same decommissioning of tracks and/or in which a limited number of trains are permitted to pass through the decommissioned section. ProRail will use another system (work zone safety) for this purpose in long term.
